What's going on here?

[06:45] (Flashback) T

Huh? Huh? I-Is that me?

[06:48] (Flashback) T

I... I'm in the picture that Shogun sent me a day before the murder?

[06:55] (Flashback) Gi

What are you looking at?

[07:05] (Flashback) Gi

Are you okay?

[07:10] (Flashback) T

D-Don't kill me!

[07:12] (Flashback) Gi

Oh, please.

[07:14] (Flashback) Gi

Why would you say something like that?

B-Because I-I saw you...

[07:20] (Flashback) T

I saw you k-killing someone.

[07:23] (Flashback) Gi

I never thought I'd hear Taku call me a killer.

Have you been "assembled"?

[08:32] (Flashback) S

Doubt the world.

[08:34] (Flashback) S

Learn its ways.

[08:35] (Flashback) S

Everything, including humans, is electrical.

[08:40] (Flashback) S

People receive information from outside their body via their five senses.

[08:44] (Flashback) S

But about 80 percent of it comes from their sense of sight.

[08:48] (Flashback) S

The images detected by the sense of sight are turned into pulse signals

[08:52] (Flashback) S

and sent via nerves to the brain.

[08:54] (Flashback) S

The world we see is, in a way, created by those pulses.

[09:00] (Flashback) S

So what if you could convert artificial image data into those pulses?

[09:06] (Flashback) S

A patent has already been issued for that technology in America.

[09:10] (Flashback) S

In other words, all five senses,

[09:13] (Flashback) S

no, even human will itself,

[09:18] (Flashback) S

can be controlled with existing technology.

It was a lot of work.

[28:10] T

But, thanks to that, I was able to get photos of the crime scene

[28:14] T

that nobody but the police has seen yet.

[28:17] T

It might turn out to be critical evidence for the case we're pursuing.

[28:21] K

But that doesn't mean
it's okay to skip school!

[28:25] T

I had to do it.

[28:27] K

Why?

[28:28] T

I mean, juicy scoops like these...

[28:30] K

"Juicy"?

[28:32] K

People are dying, and you call it juicy?

[28:34] T

N-No... I'm sorry.

[29:07] T

Th-There are two cases
we're pursuing right now.

[29:10] T

The first is the Niconiya public livestreamer suicide

[29:13] T

that took place on the 7th of this month,

[29:16] T

a.k.a. "Don't Look at Me."

[29:18] T

Ootani, the victim, was a popular Niconiya streamer.

[29:22] T

He set up a time during his broadcast for people to leave comments and stepped away from the camera.

[29:27] T

[29:30] T

Afterward, there was a knock at the door,

[29:33] T

and the microphone picked up the faint sound of someone entering the room.

[29:38] T

When he came back, he was missing half of his right arm.

[29:42] T

It was a chopped into tiny slices and sitting on a plate.

[29:46] T

After that, he started to eat his fingers,

[29:48] T

as if he didn't feel any pain.

[29:51] T

And then after a short interval, he started to scream in pain and died.

[29:56] I

Hemorrhagic shock, it's called.

[29:58] T

The most popular opinion is that there was some kind of psychological issue that caused him to commit suicide.

[30:02] T

The next case happened on the 19th.

SIGN 9/19 Leaky Noise

[30:08] T

It's known as "Leaky Noise."

SIGN I sang Masquerade

[30:10] T

The victim, Momone Takayanagi,

[30:12] T

was a Sang_It singer on Niconiya.

[30:15] T

She did outdoor concerts at the same spot and time on every day it didn't rain.

SIGN Thanks for coming. Enjoy your stay. I'll be doing a street concert on the 19th, at the usual spot on Shinsen Road. See you at 10:00 PM or so!

[30:20] T

That day, she arrived pretty late and started her performance.

[30:24] T

At first she was playing her guitar along with the song,

[30:28] T

but eventually it was just her singing.

[30:31] K

What happened to her?

[30:32] T

She was dead.

[30:34] I

And, according to the evidence found,

[30:38] I

she bought a cutter at the convenience store,
cut open her own stomach,

[30:41] I

and jammed a speaker inside!

[30:43] I

After that, she did some basic first aid to hide the wound,

[30:46] I

and then she went to her concert!

[30:49] T

Anyway, until the music player started to repeat,

[30:53] T

nobody realized she was dead.

[30:56] T

See? Amazing, right?

[31:02] O

Sorry I'm late!

[31:05] T

Did you get stuck with chores?
